Ford's community work expands in 2015

Ford Motor Company is taking its social initiatives on the African continent to new heights through a variety of engaging projects.

An integral part of the Ford team's DNA is 'people serving people'. That's why our global brand promise is called Go Further.

Ford is going further to make a difference in Africa and the communities in which it operates, building a better world through its investment on the continent, its people and its employees. Creating a better world is an important part of Ford's legacy and an important part of its vision for the future.
